Example of Allen Dulles

The London Daily Mail:

This country should have a head of intelligence whose name is known to all, and could be praised, blamed, or removed—as occasion demanded. Other countries have such an appointed official. Mr. Allen Dulles, now succeeded by Mr. McCone, was one of the best-known public men in the United States when he was head of the Central Intelligence Agency—and we have yet to hear that this is inferior to MI-5.
